

Bangui M'Poko International Airport (IATA: BGF, ICAO: FEFB) is an international airport located seven kilometres (4.3 mi) northwest of Bangui, capital of the Central African Republic.

In 2004, the airport served 53,862 passengers. In 2012, the airport had an average attendance of about 120,000 passengers, despite a maximum capacity of 10,000 passengers.[1]

The airport was an unofficial refugee camp for some 60,000 refugees as of May 2014.[2] In 2017, the airport was functioning under the supervision of the UN aviation officials.

Contents

1 Airlines and destinations

2 Statistics

3 See also

4 Footnotes

5 External links

Airlines and destinations[edit]

Airlines Destinations

Air Côte d'Ivoire Abidjan,[3] Douala[4]

Air France Paris–Charles de Gaulle,[5] Yaoundé

ASKY Airlines Douala, Lomé[6]

Karinou Airlines Cotonou, Douala

Kenya Airways Douala, Entebbe,[7] Nairobi–Jomo Kenyatta[8]

Royal Air Maroc Casablanca

RwandAir Douala, Kigali[9]

Tchadia Airlines N'Djamena[10]

Statistics[edit]

Year Total passengers Increase Freight (tons) Total aircraft movements

2003 12,666 50 1,178

2004 53,862 76.8% 105 3,871

2005 52,854 −0.4% 905 4,722

2006 66,058 15.9% 2,152 5,609

2007 97,633 37.2% 2,841 7,258

2008 107,079 4.4% 2,885 7,049

See also[edit]

List of airports in the Central African Republic

List of the busiest airports in Africa

Transport in the Central African Republic

Footnotes[edit]